GymSpot Overview

GymSpot is a digital platform that connects gyms, coaches, and clients in one ecosystem designed to simplify hiring, marketing, and communication in the fitness industry.

The platform provides two main benefits for both gyms and coaches.

For Gyms

GymSpot acts as both a recruitment and marketing platform. Gyms can publish job posts for coaching positions, similar to a professional network like LinkedIn, allowing qualified coaches to apply directly.

At the same time, gyms can promote their business to potential clients by showcasing their profiles, which include photos of the facility, available plans, location, name, and other important details. Each gym has a customizable profile with the ability to edit and update its information at any time.

Gyms also have a dedicated page for each job post that shows all applicants who applied to that specific job, allowing full visibility of candidates in one place.

For Coaches

GymSpot creates career opportunities and personal branding. Coaches can discover job openings posted by gyms and apply directly through the platform.

In addition, coaches can market themselves to clients by offering online coaching services. Each coach profile highlights their certifications, transformation results, training plans, and professional background.

Search & Discovery

The platform includes a search and discovery system where users can browse all gyms with advanced filters such as location, city, or name.

A similar directory exists for coaches, allowing users to search and find trainers easily.

Communication System

Communication within the platform happens through a built-in private chat system, enabling gyms and coaches to interact directly without leaving the platform.

The system also provides real-time notifications with sound alerts for events such as new messages or job applications.

Chat is always triggered based on an interaction request (such as applying or requesting access), ensuring structured communication inside the platform.

Account & Management Pages

Users have access to dedicated pages within their accounts where they can manage their activity on the platform, including

- Viewing saved posts
- Managing applications they have received or submitted
- Viewing and managing conversations
